A good night's sleep

Home-help services can be provided during the night via home visits, remote monitoring or a combination of the two. Remote monitoring involves us checking on you via a camera positioned in a suitable location in your home, instead of entering your home during the night.

The camera can be positioned on a table or a bookshelf, or mounted on a wall. Remote monitoring via a camera does not cost any more than the regular night-time monitoring cost.

Remote monitoring is suitable for those who:

- need monitoring at night
- wake easily
- do not want someone to come into their home while they are sleeping.

How it works

Home-help staff use the camera to check on you at agreed predetermined times. You agree what staff should do if you are not in bed. When staff check on you via the camera, the green light flashes. The camera does not make any noise that could disturb you.

The camera does not record or save any images, and it is not active between monitoring checks. Remote monitoring is suitable for those who want to be able to sleep in peace and safety, without being disturbed during the night by home-help staff unlocking their door and coming into their home. Remote monitoring is based on a decision for assistance in the same way as home-help services.
